A certificate in a foreign language is an academic, non-degree program that focuses on specific skill sets. The three sections are weighted so that each question contributes equally to the total score. Look for programs that offer a year abroad and opportunities to immerse yourself in real-world experiences. The correct answer is A. This guide provides practice questions for the CLEP French Language (Levels 1 and 2) Exam only. Degree Options Master of Arts (MA) in a Foreign Language: Often earned by students interested in research, specific language-related disciplines (e.g. interpreting, translating, etc.), and/or a PhD degree. Benefits of Regional Accreditation Attending a regionally accredited school will make it easier for you to: Transfer credits (many regionally accredited colleges and universities will not accept credits from nationally accredited schools) Apply for student loans, tuition reimbursement, scholarships and funding opportunities Get into graduate school Look good in the eyes of headhunters and recruiters Regional accreditation only applies to a college or university. High school program The Institute of Modern Languages offers High School Enrichment Programs for Year 9, 10, 11 & 12 students of Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese and Spanish. Literacy, Social Studies or Education of early childhood. Career opportunities a master's master's degree set you up for higher level positions in your field (e.g. education administration), prepare you for a PhD, or help you concentrate on an area of particular interest in your career (e.g. interpretation, translation, etc.). Unless you find a combined master'sÁÁs/PhD program, a master'sÁÁs degree in a foreign language or a related field is required to apply. The best way to learn a language is to be surrounded by it. (See our article on K-12 Teaching for more info.) As part of your master'sÁÁs degree, you will usually be expected to write a thesis or complete a capstone project. Career Opportunities PhD graduates tend to become academics and foreign language faculty at universities and colleges. Degree Options Doctor of Philosophy (PhD): A research-focused degree aimed at students who wish to become researchers or teach at the university-level. In your chosen foreign language major, your courses may cover: Grammar Conversation & Composition Literature Culture History Career Opportunities Career opportunities are fairly limited with an associate'sÁÁs degree. Is a District Certificate Worth It? Sample Coursework In the first few years of a doctorate, students are expected to complete advanced graduate courses in the area of their specialization. The percentages indicate the approximate percentage of exam questions devoted to each type of question. EdD graduates take up leadership positions in K-12 schools (e.g. district curriculum supervisor) and become education professors at teaching-focused universities and colleges. This interdisciplinary program is a mixture of general education requirements and liberal arts courses. For example, to cut down on coursework in literature and culture, some students have opted to major in international relations and minor in a foreign language. As preparation for their future careers, doctoral students also often teach undergraduates during this time. Bachelor of Arts (BA): Á, the most common program for foreign language majors. During this period, candidates can can required to pass translation or language exams. If you are considering this option, make sure your associate course credits will be transferable to the BA program of your choice. YouÁÁÁÁll also be able to conduct your own research and focus on an area of concentration. As a rule of thumb, we recommend that your college or university has regional accreditation. Flight staff, hotel employees, and event planners, for example, are frequently multilingual. PhD candidates may be exploring areas such as literature, culture, and translation. The exam contains approximately 121 questions to be answered in 90 minutes. Remember that many schools will allow you to study two or more languages, pursue a double major, or use a foreign language as a minor. Since it is intended for aspiring university professors and high-level education administrators, it is heavily focused on research. research.
